- CONTINUOUS SPARRING
  - Overview: Light Contact or continuous sparring is designed to be a skilled event where the goal is out score your opponent by throwing and landing controlled techniques. It is not a full contact fighting match. Judges score the fight based on who they feel outscored their opponent. Influencing their decision is ring generalship, defense, fitness level, sportsmanship and technique. The Center referee will stop the match any time a competitor throws a technique that does not have the proper control. In continuous fighting, fighters must protect themselves at all time. A match is stopped only if a rule violation occurs, like leaving the ring, equipment is loose or if one fighter is throwing techniques too hard and out of control. Safety of our competitors is the primary concern for the center referee. If a fighter continues to throw techniques without control they will be warned and eventually disqualified. (see warning system) On the other side, if a fighter is out of shape and is avoiding the fight they will also be warned and eventually disqualified.
